

Smith Cove Park

Smith Cove area today

Join us for an evening discussion about the future of Smith Cove and the potential for a new shoreline park in your community

March 3, 2011, 6:30-8:30 pm (Presentation at 7:00 pm)
Magnolia Community Center, Catherine Blaine Cafeteria
2550 34th Ave W, 98199

The Port of Seattle and the City of Seattle are discussing a possible land exchange and creation of a new waterfront park in the Smith Cove area. Those discussions could result in a relocated city park and playfield with expanded shoreline access. The King County Wastewater Treatment Division also has proposed construction of an underground Combined Sewer Overflow (CSO) holding tank in the area to protect water quality in Puget Sound.

This is a unique opportunity to help plan recreation uses, shoreline habitat and potential new public access to the water. Plan to attend and bring your ideas to create a new Smith Cove Park.

Department of Natural Resources and Parks
Wastewater Treatment Division